To Whom This May Concern:

Being a teacher is something that is not for everyone. It involves organization, creating and maintaining relationships as well as staying positive and giving full effort every day. I have had the pleasure to work side by side Morgan Schwarz for the past two years and she embodies all of these qualities of being an effective teacher and coach.

The past two years, Morgan and I have coached softball together. Morgan is one of the most organized people I have come across and I have been very fortunate to get to work with her. She plans all of her practices and puts time into where her athletes will play in each game. Morgan possessed superior organization skills that show in her everyday planning for softball. Relationships are also very important to her when she is in the school as well as on the field.

Morgan creates a relationship with every student athlete she comes in contact with whether she has them on her team or they are on a different team. You will find Morgan making conversation about each athlete's day as well as asking how everything is going outside of softball. Morgan is extremely friendly, is always one to come into school, practice and games with a smile on her face and a happy greeting. All children enjoy when someone shows interest in who they are outside of school.

Everyday, Morgan processed a positive attitude and she gives each day everything she has got to make it successful. Morgan always makes the people around her smile and have a good time. Situations arise and Morgan always finds a way to make negatives into positives and work out the problem. This is another skill that is transferred from sports to teaching in a classroom.

Morgan Schwarz is a great teacher, coach and an overall amazing person. She has a big heart as well as knows how to connect with the people around her. She will be a great asset to your school as a teacher and as a coach. If you have any questions about Morgan please feel free to contact me with the above information.

Sincerely,
