Explanation Paper:

While doing my clinical at Franklin Elementary in Mankato, MN the students were reading a book in their literacy class. The students then had to use Fakebook to act as a character in the story. The students were able to chose who they wanted to be from the story. The students then had to post as that character while reading the story. They were to have at least six posts showing what the character might have said during the story. The students also had to comment at least three times on other students pages in a way that their character would have responded.

Standards:

6.4.1.1 Cite textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferences drawn from the text.

6.4.2.2 Determine a theme or central idea of a text and how it is conveyed through particular details; provide a summary of the text distinct from personal opinions or judgments.

6.4.3.3 Describe how a particular story's or drama's plot unfolds in a series of episodes as well as how the characters respond or change as the plot moves toward a resolution.

Rubric:

	5- Exceptional	4- Capable	3- Developing	2- Emerging	1- Beginning
A character from the book has been chosen.	The student has picked a character from the story to use for their fakebook.				The student did not pick a character from the story.
6 posts on fakebook	The student clearly posted 6 times as their character.	The student posted at least 4 times as their character	The student posted at least 3 times as their character	The student only posted 2 times as their character	The student has only posted 1 time as their character
3 comments on fakebook	The student has commented on other students posts at least three times.		The student has commented 2 times on other students posts.		The student has commented at least 1 time on other students posts

The posts show clearly who the character is	Without looking at the name of the character you know who the character from the story is.		One can slightly tell who the character from the story is		It is difficult to know who the character from the story is.

Notes:

Final Score: _____

   (20 Points Total)